'AGAINST ALL OF IT. . .'

The Governor came out against all eight sections of the proposed constitution Tuesday. Mr. Briscoe goes from non-leadership to negative leadership.

At last, at least, he speaks to the issue.

Lt-Gov. Bill Hobby is for it. House Speaker Bill Clayton is for it. Former House Speaker Price Daniel, Jr., is for it. Atty-Gen. John Hill is for it. All Democrats.

State Rep. Ray Hutchison is for it. And he is the new chairman of the Republican Party in Texas.

Leon Jaworski, Watergate prosecutor, Nuremburg trials counsel and Houston attorney, is for it. He is considered a liberal.

Practically every legislator is for part if not all of the proposal, except perhaps State Sen. Peyton McKnight, of Tyler, heading an opposition program against it.

The former Texas Supreme Court Justice Robert W. Calvert heads the group urging its approval.

An organization known as Texas Association of Counties opposes all eight of the sections of the proposal.

Teachers' groups have come out for parts of the whole to all of it.

In sum, the positions are established.

Now it is up to the public to see what good is in the proposition, what bad there might be.

The Herald, among numerous other voices over the past 15 years, has supported a new constitution. Former Governors Daniel, Connally and Smith (who opposes annual sessions) urged a rewrite.

Daniel's son was speaker of the house ahead of chairing the constitutional convention of legislators which failed by 3 votes to come up with a proposal in summer, 1974, salvaged by the Legislature in 1975 to bring this proposal to a vote November 4.

The truth is the present document has been amended more than 200 times. It has sentences ranging upward to 600 words and longer, challenging interpretation by courts or anybody.

It is true the new document would be tested in court where questions came up on language, however modern and understandable in this proposal. But that process continues on the over-amended older document through court question and interpretation.

The real truth is that Texas is no longer a carpet-bag impacted state of cattle trails, cotton patches and plantations, of oil barons, forest magnates and cattle ranchers.

The oil industry is corporate. The cotton industry is in limbo. The cattle industry is recovering amidst scientific feeding and feedlot management. Maize, wheat, sunflowers, even soybeans assume the bulk of cash crops.

The cities are industrialized. The small cities and towns are industrialized. The greatest system of highways in the country ties this amalgam together. Major seaports at Houston, Corpus Christi and Galveston put foreign export at a major level of trade for the state. The population is approaching 13 million. And there are enormous stretches of land to be inhabited for centuries to come.

All this has made a sham of the present constitution and its amendments.

Traditionalists defend it just because it is there. They lump it with the pride of San Jacinto, the Alamo and Hood's Brigade in the Civil War, but they are history, not constitutional law.

It is easy to fault anything new by crying tradition. But I doubt that much of the standup opposition dates its roots to the traditional resources of this state.

A TEXAS TORY

Dolph Briscoe, for one, does. He is a traditionalist from small-town Southwest Texas. He is a fine man who served in the legislature back in the late '50s, emerging as a gubernatorial contender when Sharpstown, occurring under the present constitution, cancelled several major Texas political careers.

He is for good roads and against brucellosis and anthrax. He is a banker and major domo in one of Texas' largest ranching and land domains. He couldn't seriously entertain changing this constitution if it had been rewritten by Franklin, Jefferson, Adams and Jay.

He is a Texas Tory.

And for similar reasons, his total rejection will have minimum effect when so many in elective office above state treasurer, and who knows what Jesse James might say, is for several sections or all of it, except the comptroller, who is already hedging his rhetoric.

Dolph Briscoe was in the right place at the right time for re-election. For the majority of people living in Texas in 1975, he is wrong on this issue.

Eighty percent of Texans live on 2 percent of Texas. A constitution is for people, not just wide open spaces.

Armistice Day Reception Set For Rep. Kubiak

TAYLOR

November 11, Armistice Day, has been set as the date for an appreciation reception honoring Rockdale State Rep. Dan Kubiak, organizers said Tuesday.

The reception will be held in the Taylor Knights of Columbus Hall and begins at 7 p.m. on November 11, said Jack Welch of Marlin, one of the coordinators for the event. The Knights of Columbus Hall is located on Highway 79 (the Rockdale Highway) just east of Taylor.

"We chose Armistice Day for the reception because Dan Kubiak sponsored legislation to take this holiday off the list of Monday holidays," Welch said. "The reception will coincide with the retrn of Armistice Day to its original historic date."

Welch said tickets are now being distributed througnout Falls, Milam, and Williamson Counties. Persons needing tickets or additional information can call either 446-2887 or 446-2839 in Rockdale, he said, and material will be sent by return mail.

"Details on entertainment and refreshments will be announced within the next few days," Welch said. "We hope the reception will be an outstanding success, because all the people of our area are fortunate to have a man of Dan Kubiak's stature as our representative."

$3 Dispute Ends In Death

SOMERVILLE

What apparently was a dispute over $3 has left one man dead and another in the Burleson County jail charged with murder. According to the sheriff's department one 32-year old man died from three wounds from a .22 calibre pistol wielded by a Snook man. The two reportedly had a dispute over $3 and the Snook man shot the other in the back with the pistol, which he still had in his hand when he was arrested.

Prison Readies For Women

GATESVILLE

It will be mid-December before women offenders are received at the Mountain View unit near Gatesville now being remodeled into an adult prison facility by the Texas Department of Corrections. Much of the extensive overhaul of the multi-structure facility has been completed.

Trustees Adopt Policies

LAMPASAS

Faced with threat of loss of federal funds and state accreditation, the Lampasas board of trustees reluctantly ordered implementation of two controversial policies into city schools. They were the Title IX directive from the Department of health, Education, and Welfare dealing with treatment of individuals on the basis of sex; and the interpretation of a ruling by the attorney general.

House Stops Truck

CALDWELL

Willie Weichert's house on the west side of Highway 36 south of Caldwell came out on the short end of the stick (or would the be splinter) as it served as a stopping device for a big truck tractor rig which had been northbound of 36. Damage to the house was put at $14,500 and damage to the truck was also very extensive.

Voters Defeat Bond Issue

BELTON

Voters of the Belton school district turned down a $5 million school bond issue in Tuesday's election. The vote was 951 for and 1,539 against. This is the first time since 1949, when Belton's school expansion program actually began that voters have rejected a school bond issue. The school board president remarked, "I feel that our children have lost. . ."

Cable To Offer Movies

GEORGETOWN

Is cable television going into competition with Georgetown's theaters next month? Officials of the cablevision company say no, as does the manager of the city's theaters. The city council apparently agreed with the company as it gave it blessings to the firm's proposal of offering six recently released film features to cable customers each month.

Ed Commissioner's Letter To Clarify Hill School Ruling

AUSTIN

A seven-point letter designed to answer questions raised by the recent Attorney General's Opinion eliminating many fees traditionally charged public school students were mailed to school administrators across the state Friday by Dr. M. L. Brockette, commissioner of Education.

The opinion issued on October 1 by Attorney General John L. Hill covered three key areas: tuition for driver education, charges for school supplies and instruction and lab fees, and fees for extra curricular activities.

Hill's ruling confines itself to the specific questions asked, Brockette's letter to the school superintendents point out. It also states that all area addressed in the Opinion that are not permitted by law are prohibited.

"The following statements are submitted in response to the many questions from local school districts," Brockette says in his letter to some 1,100 district superintendent. "We hope the following will help you in implementing the Opinion."

(1) The effective date is the date of the ruling, October 1, 1975. The Attorney General's Opinion did not cover fees collected prior to the date of October 1, 1975.

(2) The ruling does not speak to students furnishing traditional supplies such as pencils, paper, etc.

(3) Fees charged to buy such materials as workbooks, etc., are covered under the ruling. Fees for typing, labs, etc., are also coverec by the ruling.

(4) Materials necessary for the student to acquire basic skills in vocational education courses must be furnished by the school dstrict. However, the school district may allow a student, at his option, to furnish costlier or different vocational materials for approved projects undertaken for credit in such courses without incurring any obilgation to pay for such materials, so long as the materials and the projects created from them remain the property of the student.

(5) A school district may charge tuition for driver education if taught in the student's fourth quarter (summer school). This is one of the areas in which tuition may be charged as indicated in Texas Education Code 16.864.

(6) A school district may charge non-participating students admission to extra curricular activities where attendance is voluntary.

(7) A rental fee may not be charged for band uniforms. The opinion does not address the question of students furnishing their own uniforms and/or equipment.

Safety Study Needed...

Something is wrong at that US 77-US 190 intersection where three accidents caused two deaths last week.

Should it be warning lights, new engineering on the SP tracks running parallel to US 77?

Some years ago, a carload of Fort Hood soldiers rammed across that rail crossing into traffic on US 77, killing several in one horrendous collision.

Last week's toll in accidents may be the highest yet. It is tragic and avoidable.

The "Y" intersection of US 77 and SH 36 southeast of Cameron has blinker stop lights. They were installed after a number of cars went through SH 36 into a field.

It may be a solution as simple as that. It may require modification of lanes.

But the situation last week became grim. We hope traffic safety engineers of Texas Highway Department will put their expertise to work.

Belton Defeats Proposal...

Belton Independent School District patrons last week voted down a $5 million bond issue, 1,539 to 951.

Such a turndown occurred twice in Cameron during the past few years. The Cameron bond issue proposals were about a third the size of Belton's.

A sharp increase in 1974 school taxes may have precipitated the turndown, led by a Belton taxpayer group. And a proposed site for a new high school was criticized.

Cameron has been working on improvements, building by building, room by room. Renovation of Yoe Gym is underway. Classrooms at the east end are scheduled for renovation for the Yoe High science department.

But piecemeal construction is not the solution for a district like Belton, which is likely growing because of Fort Hood, Killeen, and Temple surrounding it.

Perhaps Belton has greater percentage of bonded indebtedness. Cameron is less than $300,000, which is about 1 percent of current CISD evaluation.

Belton perhaps was too ambitious. Cameron has yet to spend enough.

The longer both districts wait for needed facilities, the more it will cost.

Minefields Hemming In Nomadic Tribesmen

By Hugh Orgel

TEL AVIV

Reuter--Nomadic Bedouin tribesmen, free for centuries, to roam the desert, now face the prospect of being hemmed in between Israeli and Egyptian minefields along the narrow strip of the Sinai Desert.

They are among a million Arabs living under the Israelis. With the signing of the New Sinai truce agreement their future is more uncertain today that at any time since their lands were occupied in the six-day war eight years ago.

For fresh peace talks could once more change the Arab-Israeli boundaries.

But the Bedouin seem to be fairly philosophical about their fate. Venerable elders, interviewed on Israeli television, recalled that changes in their overlords had been a constant theme of their history with each occupying power seeking to restrict their freedom of movement.

"We have been ruled by the Turks, by the British, by the Egyptians and by the Israelis," one said, "Each has come and gone. We have remained."

The Bedouin say it matters little who is nominally in charge. "All we want is to stay where we are, driving our flocks about the desert in search of water. It is our homes, our villages, our grazing grounds that are important."

Less philosophical are thousdans of the ancient Druze sect, living on the sensitive Goland Heights. They have gone on a feverish buying spree converting their cash into expensive consumer goods as a hedge against the future.

The recent pact between Israel and Egypt could break the deadlock in settling the long dispute in the Middle East and for many of those living under Israeli control the prospect of indefinite occupation no longer seems inevitable.

But these victims of Middle East wars have little say about what happens to them. Their fate still depends largely on decision by the superpowers and negotiations between the Arab and Israeli rulers.

The future movement of the 10,000 Bedouin in northern Sinai was reported to have occupied much of the time of the military and technical negotiating teams which met in Geneva to draw up implementation procedures for the interim agreement.

The Egyptians were reported to have said only they should be responsible for the tribesmen and no details should be specified in the protocol.

But the Israelis are said to have insisted that the tribesmen should come under United Nations control in the buffer zone between Israel and Egypt. Free movement across the front lines as demanded by the Bedouin would be dangerous, they said, and arms and drug smuggling--a traditional occupation of the nomads--too easy.

They added that Egyptian soldiers could easily be dressed in flowing Bedouin robes and infiltrate Israeli-held territory for intelligence purposes.

An amicable unpublished settlement was reached--satisfactory to the Israeli and Egyptians, at least, if not completely to the Bedouin themselves.

The 8,000 Druze, members of a secret religion formed as a breakaway from Islam in the 11th century, living in a dozen villages in the occupied Golan Heights, feel that it is their fate which will be settled next--if and when talks begin on an interim agreement or final settlement between Israel and Syria.

The Sytirans would like to see at least a partial withdrawal by Israel. The Israelis say neither the terrain of the Golan Heights nor the mood of the Syrians would permit anything less than an overall peace treaty with Damascus.

Like the Sinai Bedouin, the Golan Druze prefer not to be drawn into discussion as to which way they would like a decision to go--back to Syria or to remain in Israel.

Whatever happens, they would like to have greedom of access to fellow Druz in both countries--and would, therefore, like to see peach come to the Middle East.

Bright Future For Suez Canal?

By Bernd Debusmann

CAIRO

Reuter--Nearly 3,000 ships have passed through the Suez Canal since it was reopened with pomp and ceremony four months ago today--and Egyptian officials predict a bright future for the waterway.

But will the 108-mile canal --dubbed "the world's longest anti-tank ditch" during the eight years of its closure--ever again play the key role in international shipping it did before the 1967 Israeli-Arab war?

Egyptian officials say yes, Foreign experts say perhaps, but probably no.

The future of the canal depends as much on political developments in the volatile Middle East as on the course of world trade and trends in shipping, a notoriously unpredictable sector of the world economy.

Since Egyptian President Anwar Sadat lead the first convoy of ships through the canal on June 5, it has been used by an average of 22 vessels per day--less than half the pre-1957 traffic.

But in recent weeks, the traffic has increased to more than 30 ships per day. And the recent signing of the American-negotiated interim peace agreement between Israel and Egypt prompted the Suez Canal authority to predict a 100 percent increase in the number of vessels using the canal.

According to current estimates, Egypt's revenue from canal dues, its cheif source of foreign currency before the 1967 war closed the canal, is expected to total 450 million U.S. dollars in the first full year of operation.

Foreign experts have expressed doubt over the likelihood of this target being reached.

It will depend partly on the extent to which insurance brokers and ship owners share Egyptian confidence in a future without war, reflected by feverish reconstruction in Port Said, Ismailia, and Suez-Canal cities destroyed by Israeli bombing raids and artillery attacks.

With the new canal dues roughly 90 percent higher than before 1967 and with current demand for tanker tonnage slack, there is relatively little incentive for tanker owners to use the waterway, apart from the fact that it is not yet equipped to handle the really big tankers.

Despite gloomy forecasts to the contrary, the canal authority has so far kept to its schedule of improvement.

Within the next three years the canal is to be widened and deepened to permit the passage of ships with a draught of 53 feet and tankers of 150,000 tons.

Involved Citizens Aid Growth Of Rogers Community

First inspired by the location of the Santa Fe Railroad, the town of Rogers sprang up in the 1880s when a man named Joe Brooker opened a general store and other businesses and homes grew up around it.

The town was named by the railroad for a Galveston capitalist and railroad official, John D. Rogers.

Rogers grew to a town that hosted six practicing doctors, a small hospital, six gins and a bank. According to Mrs. Mae Bigham, whose parents came on a covered wagon to Cameron, by 1916 the town had two theaters, one an open air theater; an opera house, and four churches. The town was also a major cotton ginning center for the area.

But with the 1930s severe depression and dramatic changes in farm operations by the take-over of big machines and recently with the modern highways throughout Bell County, B. F. Harbour, former school superintendent in Rogers, states Rogers has been changed from a hustling business town serving a large and prosperous agricultural area, into a small business town with a number of good businesses left, but depending on Temple and other neighboring cities for much of the economic needs of the citizens."

Harbour, who is also Bicentennial chairman for the town states that even farm life has changed with farming not on such a large scale now. He states that you can often find one member of the farm family doing outside work to supplement the family income.

"Some now call Rogers mostly a residential town, for many of its citizens now commute to work to Temple, Belton, Rockdale, Waco, Killeen, and so on," Harbour said.

He also said that though Bell County once had around 120 school districts, it now has only around 7 independent school districts. Rogers has consolidated nearly all of the rural or common school districts in its area.

The school district covers almost 150 square miles according to Wayne Cornelius present Rogers school superintendent.

The school has seen a very gradual increase in school enrollment in the past several years. When asked about prospects for future growth, Harbour stated that he doesn't see any swift growth unless new industry is brought in; however, he anticipates a continued gradual growth of the town with a trend of people moving away from large cities into smaller communities.

James Wentrcek, executive vice-president for the First State Bank of Rogers states that he feels the town is too close to Temple not to grow.

And with the expanding community, the bank is planning a $75 thousand expansion and remodeling project. Construction should begin within the next three weeks.

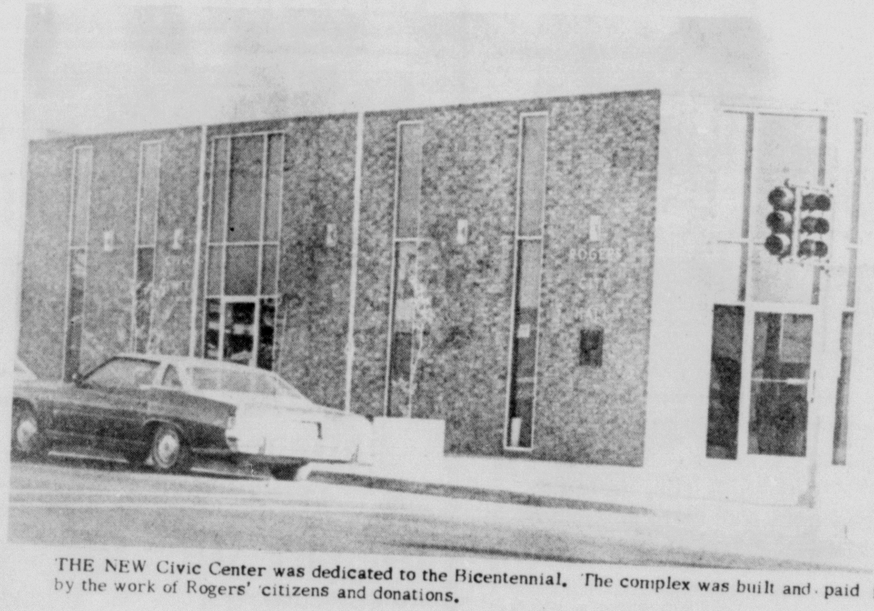
The citizens of Rogers take a glowing pride in their newly built civic center and city hall. With the city funding its part of the complex, the town's people completed their new center with money raised from a junk and antique sale, a vaudeville type stage show, and donations.

With all the labor donated by the citizens, the complex estimated at $90,000 in value, was completed debt-free with money in the bank.

The town is also working on a grant from HUD for drainiage and street work and hopefully a new park, according to Mayor W. A. Persky.

Mayor Persky reports that he is impressed with the support of the community. "It is the hardest thing to get people involved. (In a small town) you must have them do things. I truly feel their support, . . .a new interest in the community of Rogers."

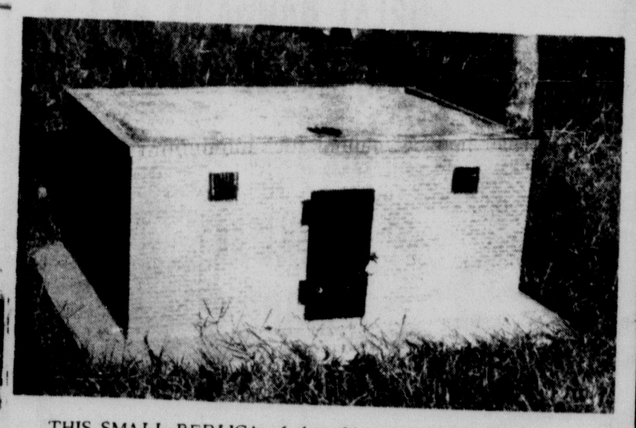
THE ROGERS Community Service Club placed this sign on the highway entrance to the city. This club planned and organized the building of the new Civic Center.



THE NEW Civic Center was dedicated to the Bicentennial. The complex was built and paid for by the work of Rogers' citizens and donations.

CONSTRUCTION of a new agricultural and vocational building is underway by the Rogers Independent School District. According to Wayne Cornelius, superintendent, the building will house agricultural classes, two home economics units, a handhall and vocational office and business education classes.

BUILT around the turn of the century, this old Methodist Church building housed many of the community events years ago. Because of its large size it used to host commencement exercises and weddings.



THIS SMALL REPLICA of the old jail was made as a Bicentennial project for the community before it had to be torn down to make way for a road to the newly built grain elevator. The new jail is housed in the City Hall-Civic Center complex.

Glaucoma Screening Warns 14

Fourteen adults attending the glaucoma detection program Sunday afternoon, October 12, at Rockdale learned that they had an elevated pressure within their eyes which is one of the early danger signals of this blinding eye disease.

Although it does not always follow that glaucoma is present, this can only be determined by a thorough medical eye examination.

There were 262 persons screened in a two-and-one-half hour period by 6 ophthalmologists, Members of the Travis County Medical Society and the Bell County Medical Society assisted by local nurses. Also serving as volunteers were members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Travis County Medical Society, members of the Rockdale Lions Club and their wives.

Jafus White tallied two touchdowns and picked oft one interception to boost the Yoe offense in the 31-0 whi pping. White gained 66 yards in 16 carries. Mike Peck Photo.

Undefeated Yoemen Overpowers Hornets

A sky-high Yoe offense continued their undefeated habits when they overpowered the 5th ranked Caldwell Hornets 31-0 in District 23AA action Friday night as the Yoemen celebrated Homecoming '75.

It was an old fashioned whipping thatthe Yoe offense backed with a tremendous defensive performance dished out in 48 minutes to teach the Hornets the meaning of #1.

Not only were the blazes at the Bonfire hot, but Aaron Miller burned the home soil for 95 yards in seven carries backed by Jafus White toting the pigskin for 66 yards in 16 carries. Dennis Hollas turned in 67 yards in 5 carries to boost the Yoe rushing to 278 yards in the winning crusade.

Confused and unable to stimulate an offensive attack, the Hornets were bogged down like a Model A in quicksand. The Yoe Fence attacked the Hornets, giving them only 104 total yards and allowing them no further than the Yoe 34.

The explosion of the Yoe dominance was felt from the very beginning when Jafus White blasted through the Hornets for 65 yards setting up the Yoe offense on the Caldwell 29.

Nine plays later with 7:41 flashing on the scoreboard, Jafus White dropped his shoulder and side stepped the Hornet defense into pay dirt for 6. Joey Mondrik's PAT sailed wide of the uprights leaving the Yoemen a shakey 6-0 lead.

Finally the curse of '74 had been broken where the Yoe fans remembered the near fatal 0-0 tie one year ago in Caldwell.

Dennis Hollas took the wingback call from QB Michael White and flashed his cletes at the Caldwell defenders leaving them behind and dashing 43 yards for the second Yoe touchdown. Donald Komar set up a fake boot, and unwinded a pass to Ronnie Bennett for the 2 point conversion.

To continue blanking the Hornets in front of an overflowing crowd of 5,500, Jafus White picked off a Tony Garbs pass on the Yoe 37 yard line.

Running the sideline like a tight rope walker, Jafus White ignited the after-burners to surge the distance standing tall for 63 yards and another Yoe touchdown.

Joey Mondrik booted the extra point to continue the humiliation, 21-0.

The Yoe Band was playing and singing, "One More Time," the Yoemen did, this time in the form of a field goal. With 6:21 on the clock in the second quarter the Yoemen faced a 4th down and 4 from the 11 yard line.

Kicking specialist Joey Mondrik displayed his kicking expertise to the Homecoming crowd with a 24 yard field goal that sailed through the uprights for 3.

In the first half the Yoemen had rolled out over 139 yards rushing while the Hornets squeezed out 59.

In half time festivities, Joyce Burnett, a senior at Yoe High, was crowned Homecoming Queen '75. The Yoe band under the direction of Jerry Bartley, spelled out YOE on the field during the presentation of the royalty.

In the third quarter the Yoemen kicked off to the Hornets who went to dressing room in search of Gateraide to boost their offense. On their first offensive drive, they were forced to punt and the Yoe men took over.

Aaron Miller on a second down play,covered 70 yards in his high-stepping razzle-dazzle style to increase the Yoe score by 6. Mondrik tacked on the PAT and the Yoemen owned the field, lock, stock, and barrel, 31-0.

The Hornets asked, where were we supposed to run? It was a wise decision for the Hornets to stay clear of Joe Smitherman and Ronnie Bennett.

Unfortunatley for the Hornets, Jimmy Kohutek and Kelvin Kelley had also done their homework and the Hornets bowed their heads to the Number One Yoemen.

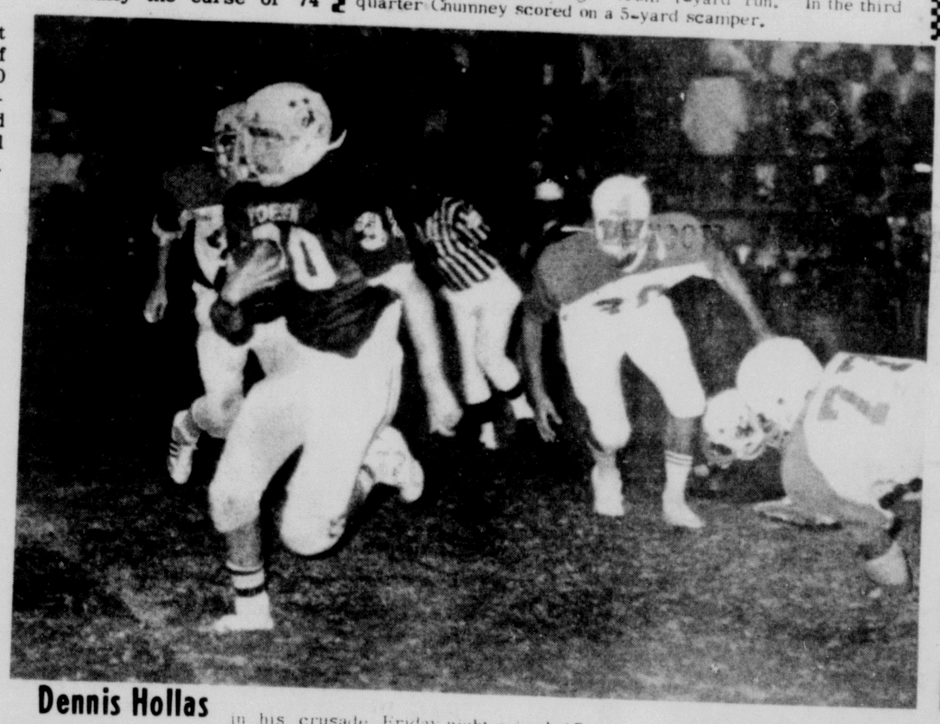
Chaps Whip Cougars,34-6

The Westlake Chaps got back into the winning column defeating the Cougars of Rosebud-Lott, 34-6. Looking, hoping for a win, the Cougars weren't handed any line of mercy by the Chaps. Mark Witzel connected on a 6-yard pass play followed by Paul Huntsberger from 1-yard run. In the third quarter Chumney scored on a 5-yard scamper.



Dennis Hollas in his crusade Friday night gained 67 yards in five carries and tallied one touchdown in the winning cause. Mike Peck Photo.

HERALD SPORTS

Yoe Freshmen Defeat Caldwell

With Norman White paving the turf, the Yoe freshmen switched back in the winning column Thursday night with an overwhelming 34-6 win over the falling Caldwell freshnen team.

The Yoe freshmen running 18 option, crushed the Horners with touchdowns in every segment. The freshmen opened the contest with a touchdown then scored twice in the second and scored once in each of the remaining quarters.

Norman White plunged into pay-dirt for the freshmen for the first touchdown and then again scored the last two touchdowns.

In the opening section of play the Yoe freshmen took the kickoff and kept the pigsking in their possession until Norman White scampered in from 10 yards out to put the Yoemen on the board. Kenneth Price got the call on the PAT and plunged in for the 2. Yoe took command, 8-0.

Rebounding from the Yoe score the Hornets made a fancy 50-yard run that was good for 6. The offensive game played out after the first touchdown and the Yoe defense held tight. The Hornets oot as close as they could all night, 8-6.

Kenneth Price dashed in from 5 yards out to increase the margin 14-6 as the PAT failed.

Before the half-time buzzer sounded, Edward Steamer creashed across the Hornet offensive line and picked off an option pitch and ran 40 yards for another Yoe touchdown. Timmy Matthews had the honors and booted the ball through the uprights for one. Yoe led 21-6.

Norman White fought through the Hornet defense and jumped the line for another TD giving the Yoemen a 28-6 lead after Matthews extra point was signaled good.

Norman White, in his third TD appearance, got the call and added another Yoe insurance policy. Matthews boot went wide and the Yoe commanded Hornet Stadium, 34-6.

Defensive standouts were Jimmy Zalesky, Steven Hollas, Edward Steamer, and Mike Mitchell, according to Coach Ken Poole. Poole also said, "I though we had a real fine effort and real good spirit. We finally got it together again."

Volatile Substances

The inhalation of chemical fumes by young people is an increasing danger. It has caused numerous deaths across the country.

The practice goes back to ancient times, but there was less danger before the development of volatile substances in modern chemical products. The appeal, of course, has always been the lift in spirits, the euphoria—in modern terms, the "high"—which is sought by inhaling intoxicating fumes.

By far the most serious epidemic of substance inhalation was the glue-sniffing which developed in the 1960s. The substance used was model airplane glue, in which the solvent was toluene. Not only are the solvent's fumes dangerous, but when users inhaled them from containers (usually plastic bags), suffocation could and did result.

Today the overwhelming majority of people who inhale fumes to get a "high" are between 10 and 15 years of age. To petroleum distillates and glue, they have added aerosol products in their risky experimentation.

Aerosols that have been misused include hair sprays, deodorants, insecticides, glass chillers, and sprays for cooking utensils, all of which contain gases of chlorinated or fluorinated hydrocarbons.

Gasoline, kerosene, and related distillates of petroleum were much slower to emerge as consciousness-altering substances, and it was not until the 1950s and 1960s that the practice of sniffing their fumes evoked substantial concern.

When death from inhaling is not due to suffocation, it comes in the form of rapid cardiac arrest.

To determine how volatile substances act on the body and how best their effects can be treated and their use discouraged are goals of research and of prevention and education programs supported by the National Institute on Drug Abuse, which is a part of HEW's Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration.

But it is everyone's job to warn young people about the serious dangers of inhaling chemical fumes.

Farm Bureau Convention Oct. 21

Milam County Farm Bureau Convention will be held Tuesday, Oct. 21, 1975 at 7:00 p.m. at the First Methodist Fellowship Hall in Cameron, Texas. Members are urged to attend and bring salad, desert or a vegetable for a covered dish supper. Milam County Farm Bureau will furnish the Barbecue, bread, drinks, plates and silverware.

Brief reports of the year's activities will be presented. Directors will be elected for the coming year and amendments will be submitted to our County Constitution and By-Laws. All members are urged to attend and participate in voting on the Constitution, By-Laws and the following resolutions:

1. We, The Milam County Farm Bureau, believe that in order to help improve the quality of our government the following limits on years of tenure should be imposed on the offices of U. S. Congressmen and U. S. Senators:

U. S. Congress --- 3 terms of 4 yrs. (12 years total)

U. S. Senate --- 3 terms of 6 yrs. (18 years total)

2. We, The Milam County Farm Bureau, believe that our organization should involve itself more actively and enthusiastically in support of its farmer and rancher members through the use of the court system. As has been demonstrated by such organizations as the N.A.A.C.P. (and our own Farm Bureau in the recent longshoreman Boycott of wheat shipments) tremendous power can be exerted by a minority through the courts. It appears that more and more the courtroom is the battleground from where the direction of our society is emerging and you and I as farmers and ranchers should be well represented there Actual confrontation with U. S. Congress on the constitutionallity of such issues as land use planning, estate taxes, Environmental Protection Agency edicts and others should be made. To support this effort a legal activities fund should be started and maintained by a $2.00 increase in the State dues beginning immediately and progress into this area guided by our state board of directors.

3. We, The Milam County Farm Bureau, believe that local rural crime resistance or watch-dog committee should be initiated to aid in controlling and reducing rural burglaries. Local Communities would organize their own patrol committee to work in cooperation with the Sheriff's Dept. More publication of offences is needed to make our local citizens more aware of this increasing threat and the need to begin some effort to resist it.

4. We, The Milam County Farm Bureau, believe that a dependable system for the purpose of keeping the board of directors well informed and current on all activities of the Commissioners Court of this County be implemented even if it is necessary to hire the assistant secretary to attend all commissioner meetings or telephone reports on matters requiring more urgent attention.

5. We, The Milam County Farm Bureau, believe that benefits and gains from our Brucellosis Eradication Program to date should not be lost or forfeited by actions now or in the future and that continuing efforts be made to eradicate the disease. Emphasis should be increased on development of an adequate vaccine. We are not in support of any program that would result in a Federal Quarantine of Texas Cattle therefore we are in favor of coming to some form of compromise with the Federal Animal Health Commission requirements.

These are only a few that will be up for your vote so please be present. We will also have door prizes.
